As constituents of yours, we ask you to urge the House of Commons Treasury Select Committee (by writing to the committee chairman Mr Andrew Tyrie MP) to encourage the government to stop commercial bankers from being the creators of almost all of our nation's money which is then a debt to the bankers, and instead to make the Bank of England, acting as a public servant, the creator of our nation's money as national asset (rather than a debt) and to give any newly created money to the government to spend on things that help our nation to develop a thriving export economy.
